weekly concert every Sunday afternoon between 4 and 5 o'clock in the assembly room of the museum of the same nature as the recitals in the Art museum at Toledo, Ohio, and the civic centers of other cities. Local as well as visiting talent will be invited to play and sing and admission is to be free on tickets to be had on application. It is hoped that some wise lawyer will present the new museum building with a pipe organ. Arrangements could then be made for a daily regular, such as drawn great crowds to Wanamakers store in Philadelphia each evening, or that is due to the Chamber of Commerce building at Los Angeles. The museum believes that man as well as art and science should be featured.

SHERMAN BOOSTERS MAKING APPEAL FOR REPUBLICAN SUPPORT

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE TO MORNING JOURNAL
Santa Fe, Dec. 10.—C. N. Cotton of Gallup, and John K. Stauffer of Santa Fe, today became charter members of the New Mexico society of the Archaeological Institute of America. The ways and means committee of the Archaeological Society of New Mexico addressed the following circular letter to the people of the state in the effort to organize a branch of the institute in time for the presentation of the names of charter members at the meeting at Washington, D. C., December 27 to 31:

The undersigned have undertaken as a public duty the organization of a New Mexico branch of the Archaeological Institute of America. In urgently inviting you to join with us in this action, we deem it proper to present the reasons for having a state branch of the national organization.

The institute is now nation-wide in its membership and worldwide in its work. New Mexico has been both a contributor and a beneficiary in these activities, but because of having no organized branch has no voice in the national councils.

School in Santa Fe.

The institute has established in Santa Fe the School of American Archaeology on equal plane with its schools in Athens, Roma, Jerusalem and China, having for its field the investigation of the ancient civilizations of the new world. The part which the institution is taking in investigating, conserving and making known the history of the human race in America, is now a matter of everyday notice in the public press and of constant reference in the magazines of the country.

The institute was a powerful factor in securing the legislation of 1906 for the preservation of American antiquities—laws that laid the foundation for important movements in New Mexico. The rate at which interest is increasing in this field is shown by the fact that the number of visitors to the state museum at Santa Fe during the year 1915 reaches approximately 30,000.

The highest sentiments of patriotism alone have been sufficient to move the people of New Mexico to make proper provisions for the conservation of their splendid heritage from the past, unequalled in any other state. New Mexico is foremost in recognizing that this patriotic sentiment is likewise a sound business asset. It is making this state one of the most popular resorts for intelligent travelers. Tourist travel alone has come to mean millions annually to such interesting regions as Switzerland, Italy and California. New Mexico is not acom to them in interest.

Endowment Campaign.

The institute is now beginning a nation-wide campaign for the endowment of the school in New Mexico. In no way can we add more than by establishing a vigorous branch here. Because of the European war, interest is rapidly being transferred from foreign lands to America. Now is our opportunity.

The institute holds meetings this winter in New York, Princeton and Washington City, in conjunction with the Pan-American scientific congress. It will be most fitting to have the organization of this state society reported and New Mexico formally resolved at this great meeting. The committee has taken steps to that end.

The dues for annual membership are ten dollars. Husband and wife are included in the membership of one. All receive the monthly magazine—Art and Archaeology, published in Santa Fe—and may have by asking for it the quarterly magazine, the American Journal of Archaeology, and the Archaeological Bulletin. In special arrangement all who become members of the New Mexico branch of the institute will thereby be members of the Archaeological Society of New Mexico without additional dues.

ONE MURDERER IS EXECUTED IN HUNT'S DOMAIN

Ramon Villalobos Is Hanged
After Long Delay and Depite Interference to Save
His Life, to Last Moment.

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE TO MORNING JOURNAL
Phoenix, Ariz., Dec. 10.—"Ramon Villalobos, the first man to undergo capital punishment since Arizona became a state, was hanged this afternoon at 2:35 o'clock."

Villalobos was convicted on the murder of Deputy Sheriff Thomas Brown of Pinal county, in October, 1914. He mounted the scaffold unshaded and died protesting his innocence.

A final effort was made to save the prisoner just before the trap was sprung. It was alleged that W. J. Jones, state attorney general, was not present as a witness but when George Hartley, assistant attorney general, announced his presence as a representative of Jones, the execution proceeded.

Twice before successful efforts were made to prevent the execution of Villalobos, in January last. B. P. Sims, warden of Florence prison, refused to carry out the death sentence on the ground that the state board of pardons and paroles created to take over the governor's powers of pardon and reprieve, had not been organized. And last May, Villalobos and four other Mexicans were saved from the gallows by the intervention of William J. Green, then secretary of state.

Ten other condemned men are in Florence prison. The case of cold are pending in the state supreme court, all questions of sentence.

When Santa Fe train No. 7 arrived here yesterday it cut the throngs driven from their homes by the influenza, still were on guard tonight, but there was little for them to do. Most of the ventilators had beaten off. It was reported that parcels had been opened in the car but Wells-Fargo's people denied this in the few remaining buildings of the town by statement that there was nothing to eat since whether the man had gained the inside of the car and that they did not know whether anything was missing.

The attempt was made during the night. The car was opened at La Junta, Colo., and there nothing unusual was noticed. This fixes the attempt between La Junta and Albu-

STATE FAIR TO BE HELD EARLIER, RACES MOVED UP

Raton and Trinidad Withdraw From Santa Fe Circuit and Albuquerque Is Advanced
Two Weeks.

The New Mexico state fair will be held two weeks earlier next year. The Santa Fe racing circuit, which largely controls the dates, has word to R. W. Wiley, secretary yesterday, that Albuquerque had been given racing dates six weeks ahead of those of Clark's. The week of September 25 was assigned to Albuquerque.

The earlier dates for Albuquerque were made possible by the withdrawal of Raton and Trinidad from the circuit. They held the two weeks previously. Albuquerque's "American" was admitted in the circuit and given dates later than the New Mexico fair week.

An effort is to be made, according to Mr. Wiley, to bring other Texas cities into the Santa Fe circuit.

Weather conditions, it is thought, are less likely to interfere with late racing than here and these cities probably would find any strong objection to following Albuquerque.

During the last fair the opinion was expressed that New Mexico should hold its big event earlier in the fall. This was decided on the fact that there were two bad days during fair week, although previous to that date period, and following it the weather was good.

Mr. Wiley was elected vice-president of the circuit.
